

Asynchronous At-Home Learners

Here are a few details to answer some basic questions about at-home learning.

- The Mandatory Attendance Law is still in place, even for at-home learners. It states a child must be counted present for 90% of the school days in order to be promoted to the next grade level.
- In order to be counted present while participating in asynchronous at-home learning, you must meet one of the following criteria each day
  - Turn in work each day (Google Classroom, Dojo, packet returned to school) (Can't do the whole packet in one day and get marked as engaged, and can't date each day in the packet and turn it in. Must communicate each day with the teacher/interventionist what was done in the packet).
  - Phone call with the teacher or interventionist listing out what work was done that day
  - Email to the teacher listing out what work was done that day
  - Online progress check using iStation, Lexia, or any other program we have that can document student progress
- It is highly recommended that you have a device with internet access in order to do asynchronous at-home learning. However, we will provide paper packets for those that do not a device or internet access.
  - Paper packets must be picked up on Mondays from 9 am to 11 am
  - Paper packets will be out front with your child's name on them. Please only take the one with your child's name. If there is not one for your child, please contact the office, do not take someone else's packet.
- Those students participating in at-home learning may be required to come to school at times throughout the grading period to take certain tests. Those times will be scheduled after school or on Saturdays by the homeroom teacher.
- We will be having Parent Training Nights for each grade level in order to assist parents in learning how to navigate the Asynchronous At-Home Learning. Each night will be held from 5:00 pm - 6:30 pm at Taylor Creek Elementary in the homeroom teacher's classroom. Below are the dates for each grade level.
  - 5th grade – August 17 – Chromebooks will be handed out at this time
